A BALTIMORE RING.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 13.—[Special.]—The Grand Jury of the Criminal Court of this city today presented presentments against the Hon. William Pinkney Whyte, ex-United States Senator and now Mayor of Baltimore, and against all the other members of the city Police Board. These presentments charge Whyte with the appointment of an unnecessary number of policemen, in the interests of the Police Board, principally for the purchase of unnecessary supplies and the violation of city laws by allowing many of their number to act as agents for the Board. Henry Wirth, a Democratic ex-officio of the Board. The other persons presented, by the grand jury are: J. Frank Brannan, Warden of the city jail; D. H. Smith, City Commissioner, for the Democratic of Second Area; Thomas W. Cowgill, ex-officio; Samuel T. Hopkins, Captain D. Kingsbill, and General Kennedy, all ex-officio members of the Democratic party in Baltimore, and their presentment is the biggest sensation in Baltimore politics that has occurred in many a day. The Police Board, to which three of Whyte's men belong, was elected by the City Council last winter at the suggestion of Mayor Whyte, to take the place of the Police Board, which, under the old charter, was elected by the people. Ex-United States Senator Whyte was to the United States Senate, and continued to be the political boss of Baltimore. All the other members of the Police Board, so exactly as those already named in Whyte, are known as Democrats. Mr. Brannan was a member of the City Council of Baltimore under the old charter, and Mr. Hopkins was a member of the Democratic State Committee which was elected by the Democratic State Convention which met in Baltimore in 1874, for an unlimited term, a predecessor of Kennedy, who is Democratic postmaster of Baltimore, appointed by Postmaster-General James. The Republicans said the Democrats in Maryland could not hold their own at the polls, and with a Democratic Police Board in control of the election machinery, they could carry the State. The Democrats said the Republicans were not strong enough to carry the State

RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 13.—The report of Lieut. Francis M. Fox on river and harbor improvements in the Detroit district has been received at the War Department. The following is a synopsis of the report and the recommendations respecting the several works in the district:

Improvements on the Detroit River—The general project now for a normal channel 300 feet wide with a uniform depth of twenty feet. During the last year a modification of the original project was recommended to the Chief of Engineers, which if adopted would provide a straight channel of the same width and depth. The engineer says: "It is of great importance that the improvement should be prosecuted to early completion on the modified plan. If the amount of the estimate, $207,750, be appropriated in one year the work will be materially hastened and benefits derived much earlier." At the present time, it is practically unbroken navigation for vessels drawing twenty feet of water, and the commerce is very large. The original estimate of the cost of the improvement was $1,000,000, and the amount expended and covered by contracts is $1,000,000. The amount required to complete the work is $207,750.

DEPARTMENTAL GOSSIP.

The issue of standard silver dollars from the mint for the week ending Aug. 11 was $[illegible], and for the corresponding period last year $[illegible].

Rear-Admiral Cooper and the officers of the Bureau of Navigation took part in the exercises of the "Submission of Sailors" at the opera-house at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, July 28. Admiral Cooper and the officers of the staff, in full uniform, escorted Mrs. John Hay, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, which was a pleasant incident on the part of the officers of the Department of Commerce. While the officers were on the steamer on the return trip to Washington the steamer ran into a fog bank and was thereby delayed for several hours, and the officers were compelled to remain on board without dinner. Secretary Herbert, who was also a guest of the occasion, was met at the depot by his carriage and driven to his residence.

Commissioner Fitzgerald, of the Fish Commission, has returned from Gloucester, Mass., where he has been engaged in the work of the Commission. Fitzgerald reports that the fishing interests of Gloucester are very much depressed, and that the fishermen are unable to secure crews for their vessels. The principal cause of the depression is the fact that the fishermen cannot get their fish to market, owing to the embargo placed upon the transportation of fish by the railroads. Fitzgerald reports that the fishermen are unanimous in their opinion that the embargo should be removed, and that the fish should be allowed to be transported to market. The fishermen are also unanimous in their opinion that the embargo should be removed, and that the fish should be allowed to be transported to market. The fishermen are also unanimous in their opinion that the embargo should be removed, and that the fish should be allowed to be transported to market.

KNOCKED OUT.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 13.—[Special.]—A. W. Fitzgerald, a prominent claim agent, who has obtained considerable attention in the public prints of late with accident claims, has met with a serious reverse, so far as the Treasury Department is concerned. After a few words with Auditor Lewis, he was told to withdraw the papers. Fitzgerald endeavored to withdraw the papers, but was told to withdraw the papers. William Young, the President of a Bank at Reading, Pa., Loses $1,000.

While Sojourning at Waukesha, Wis., He Encounters a Fancy Financial Young Man.

Then Engages in a Joint Little Game, the Stranger Sells Stocks, Bonds, and Wins the Note.

Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 13.—[Special.]—All the facts in the case of the swindling of William Young, President of a bank in Reading, Pa., are made public today. The officers of the bank have in possession of reporters to the effect that Young, according to Waukesha friends, represented himself as a wealthy man of Young's acting in a quiet way. Last Wednesday, April 25, arrived here and took rooms at the Fountain House. Shortly afterward a fine-looking young man approached Mr. Young, "Dr. Young of Reading," and the acquaintance grew on this. Soon meeting, and Young's new acquaintance became a frequent visitor to Young's room. The young man then introduced Mr. Young to [illegible] of the Second Bank of Reading, and other acquaintances in the city of Mr. Young's wife, who is visiting in the latter's home, Chicago people, to Reading were the subject, and the two seemed to agree in most every matter of business. Young and [illegible] of the new gas plant were discussed, and finally the stranger was invited into Young's room. Here he produced a large roll of bills, and Young, in order to get in a game, produced $1,000 in bills. The stranger then left the room, and then started for Chicago on the 4:30 Young train following. When the fact of Mr. Young's loss became known, the [illegible] of the bank sought the stranger on the train, but failed to find him. Young then returned home and reported to his wife and friends. He has started in search of the stranger, but has not yet returned. Young's friends here say that Young is a man of means, and that the loss will not embarrass him. Young is a member of the Second Street Methodist Episcopal Church, and is well known in Reading. He is a member of the Second Street Methodist Episcopal Church, and is well known in Reading.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Grand Silver Anniversary Gala Week at Haverly's.

Lot wonder the electric circuit system of Haverly's Theatre was named by the Edison Electric Light Company for the "Gay Lotharios" of the Lyceum. The spectacle of the lightning's flash is not more brilliant than the scintillations of wit, humor, and repartee which are current in the speech of the characters in Pinero's comedy of "The Magistrate," which was produced at Haverly's last night. The appointments of the stage are perfect, and the costuming and grouping of the characters are in keeping with the best traditions of the London stage. The audience was quick to appreciate the many excellences of the performance, and kept up a continuous fusillade of applause throughout the evening. Mr. Edgar Bruce has accomplished a feat of no small difficulty in the production of this play. He has not only secured the services of several well-known actors and actresses, who have acted with Haverly's organization, but has also succeeded in getting together a company of thoroughly competent people to support them. The result is that the performance of "The Magistrate" is one of the most enjoyable that has been given at Haverly's for many months. The engagement of Mr. Bruce and his company will be limited to two weeks, and it ought to be long enough to enable every lover of the drama to see the play. The engagement of Mr. Bruce and his company will be limited to two weeks, and it ought to be long enough to enable every lover of the drama to see the play.

At Hooley's Opera House the week and front of the performance is devoted to "Hoodman Blind," a production which, in its way, is unique. It has the genius of the author, Mr. Sol Smith Russell, to thank for its existence, and it is safe to say that no other author could have produced a piece which would have suited the star for whom it was written as well as this. Mr. Russell's peculiar style of acting and his quaint personality are so well known to the public that it is unnecessary to say more than that the character of Hoodman Blind is in every way suited to the talents of the star. The play is full of humorous situations, and the audience was kept in a roar of laughter from the rising to the falling of the curtain. The support is a good one, and the performance as a whole is very creditable. "Hoodman Blind" will be the attraction for the remainder of the week.

The conspirators were on the same basis as the Socialist secret societies, each member knowing a sufficient number of others to secure their co-operation, but required information from their chief. Each officer, also another, and a number, among the first chiefs of the movement were promptly betrayed. Others, discovered confederates before others, and there is no longer a union among the Republicans. Each one is working for himself. The chief of the movement was

A Visit to the Spring at Madison Which Does That Strange Deed.

And the Beautiful Lakes and Charming Natural Springs in That Locality.

Splendid Fishing—Sea Scenery—Sole Chippewa—Sassaquadin.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 13.—[Special Correspondence.]—If you would through our lively Lake letter or for on the children's you will know that I left that pretty quiet little town. On the train I found the usual picnic party, and I was obliged to sit on the arm of a narrow seat between Kitty Kennedy, whose fun knows no bounds, and their chaperon, Miss Sweet Sir, and the young man in charge of the crowd did not let the time hang heavily. Sandwiches with that peculiar composition which makes the acquaintance of the man who set an appointment for a friend's wife, whose face never leaves it, the fascinating ginger cake, and lemonade were built in Baraboo at eight o'clock sharp, but nothing they had to prove a failure from [illegible] which the young [illegible] will do a hundred days more to come to have Providence to the fourth on a hot day. I have been more singular to the date of a midsummer frolic a which with ride and apparently horse-power that most pleasure than they would find to sit that to an office all day long. And they never spoke for shorter hours and longer days, either. But picnics are an awful pity often to those who like them, and the only drawback to them is the forced companionship about the whole party and the constant pic which, more always mantles the simplest face ever spot.

A DASH OF HISTORY.

I think that on the shores of rural Delavan Lake and Madison there is some of Nature picturesque scenery I ever saw. It is not the grand and imaginary scenery, but there is that quiet and delightful, [illegible] a part of quiet, pastoral prettiness, with bathing, boating and fishing, and all that sort of thing, and I wanted a town that would afford me that. Delavan is a little village of [illegible] people, with a good hotel, a church and a school-house.

APPROACH TO MADISON.

Although I have often visited [illegible] I never [illegible] myself [illegible] Madison, I was quite surprised at the beauty of the approach to it. The train runs for many miles [illegible] Lake Monona, which is a beautiful sheet of water, and then [illegible] Lake Mendota, which is still more beautiful, and then [illegible] the [illegible] Lake, with a great deal to attract interest.
